Gov. Sebelius attended meeting with world leaders in Istanbul, Turkey in early June
August 27th, 2007
by KSMeadowlark

Where are Kansas newspaper stories about this? The last Kansas news story about "Sebelius and "Turkey" was "Sebelius comes up cold turkey in hunt".

Google provides some clues about these meetings in Istanbul, Turkey, however, there are more questions than answers about these meetings:

Bilderberg 2007 - Towards a One World Empire?
Nexus Magazine, Vol 14, No. 5 (Aug-Sept 2007)
with excerpts in Malaysia Today, Aug 19, 2007: [The Corridors of Power]

Discussions at the 2007 Bilderberg Group meetings covered concerns over the World Bank presidency, Russia's muscle-flexing on energy issues and the failure of US-led NATO forces in Afghanistan.

NOT PRIVATE, BUT SECRET

Although participants emphatically attest that they attend the Club's annual meeting as private citizens and not in their official government capacity, that affirmation is dubious-particularly when you compare the Chatham House Rule with the Logan Act in the United States, where it is absolutely illegal for elected officials to meet in private with influential business executives to debate and design public policy.

DELEGATES AT BILDERBERG 2007

*Istanbul, Turkey, 31 May - 3 June 2007
This year's delegation included many of the most important politicians, businessmen, central bankers, European commissioners and executives of the Western corporate press. They were joined at the table by leading representatives of European royalty.*

According to the Bilderberg Steering Committee list which this author has had access to, the following names have now been confirmed as attendees at the Bilderberg 2007 conference (uncharacteristically, David Rockefeller was not present).

Kathleen Sebelius, Governor of Kansas (USA);

In Texas, the Political Action Committee "Texans for Rick Perry" paid for Gov. Perry's trip.

Governor Rick Perry has been instrumental in facilitating the Trans-Texas Corridor and related toll roads, which many argue is an essential part of infrastructure for a North American Union (or community, if you like)– that would integrate the economies, borders, police/military and even the currency (the Amero) of the United States, Mexico and Canada– as laid out by the Council on Foreign Relations' Robert Pastor, as well as the Security and Prosperity Partnership of North America– a treaty that President Bush signed with the heads of Mexico and Canada in 2005. In addition to general support and proposal of the plan, Perry publicly lobbied that foreign corporations developing the project be allowed to keep the plans secret.

Rick Perry also helped to facilitate the buyout of TxU (Texas Utilities), including the issuance of an executive order for fast track approval of certain parts of the deal. TxU was the largest buyout ever– at $45 billion dollars, purchased by private equity firm Kohlberg, Kravis & Roberts (KKR) and Goldman Sachs, a global investment firm. ...

Governor Perry has also been cosy, meeting in 2005 with then President of Mexico Vicente Fox, who awarded local police for giving sanctuary to illegal immigrants while the two heads discussed other business and cooperation. Fox was a signing member of the Spring 2005 SPP.gov (Security and Prosperity Partnership of North America) document.

Typically, the agenda of Bilderberg is kept secret, though this year has garnered unprecedented coverage for the bashful consortium of international elites.

Why did Gov. Sebelius attend these meetings? How did these meetings help Kansas?

The report said;

“Participants emphatically attest that they attend the Club’s annual meeting as private citizens and not in their official government capacity.”

That should be pretty easy to check out. Did she pay for the trip, all of it? Or did the taxpayers?

I know who I think paid for it.

My bet is she paid for the trip from her Bluestem Fund PAC, which received much of its funds from labor unions in the last election cycle. On Jan 10, 2007 Sebelius had $81,441 in her Bluestem Fund PAC. There are no PAC reports due till Jan 10, 2008. We might find out then.

I'm sure that the Guv and the rest of the Bilderberger group only have our best interests at heart. After all, why would an obscure Kansas governor fly around the world to a Muslim nation if she wasn't trying to enjoy a little vacation among the drones of the muslim minarets shouting "Rabdallahbadabah"? I mean, who wouldn't want to spend a vacation listening to that monotonous sound five times a day?

I'm afraid your imagination has run away with you. I'll bet you think it's a conspiracy, just like that episode of The Simpsons, when the insiders of Springfield met together around a big rectangular oak table and hoisted pints of beer in the air, while singing, "Who conspires to take over the world? We do...we do...WE DO!!!"

Why was Sebelius there? What does this all mean? (I don't know)

I want to know why the guv felt it necessary to fly halfway around the world to a Muslim nation. Why didn't she just fly down south to the mansion of Senor Carlos Slim, the richest man in all the world? The airfare would be a fraction of the price, the housing would be free, and the results would be the same.

A story from yesterday by Channel 49 in Topeka says Sebelius charged Kansas taxpayers $1274 for this trip — I was wrong in my speculation in posting #2 above that she would pay for it from her personal PAC.

http://www.49abcnews.com/news/2007/aug/31/taxpayers_network_criticizes_sebelius_trip/

Besides the $81,441 in her PAC, Sebelius also has $52,986 in her own campaign account. Gov. Perry from Texas paid for the trip from his PAC instead of charging the citizens of Texas for the trip. Supposedly both Perry and Sebelius were acting as “private citizens” and not in their “official government capacity.”

The Topeka Capital-Journal gave a “quiz” asking a question about this on their blog, which didn’t make any sense since the story wasn’t reported by the Topeka Capital-Journal in their newspaper. <http://blogs.cjonline.com/index.php?entry=4556>

It’s a bit scary how much news is not reported by the Kansas press.

When a meeting of the world elite occurs without press coverage conspiracy theories abound.

Why was our governor invited to the meeting?

The NAFTA Superhighway will include I – 35 with an inland port in the Kansas City area. This project, which is being planned without public debate, is part of the Security and Peace Perimeter, which has the goal of uniting Canada, the U. S. and Mexico with open borders among them.
